Introduction

Objective

The purpose of this course is to give students an understanding of individuals' behavior and attitudes, how decisions are made, and how social interactions can be understood. The aim is to give the students a nuanced understanding of the most important psychological processes in organizations. This course also gives an introduction to theories of management behavior and how this affects organizations in various ways. Additionally, it is intended to provide a good understanding of the eclectic nature of psychology and management and will be a solid platform for later courses in the same field.
